UNIVERSITY OF LONDON.

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

PROPRIETORS

Held on WEDNESDAY, the 24*th of* FEBRUARY, 1830.

ALEXANDER BARING, Esq. M.P. having been called to the Chair, the Warden read the following

REPORT

FROM THE COUNCIL.

THE COUNCIL will on this, as on former occasions, commence their Report with a statement of the FINANCES.

At the last Annual General Meeting, the number of Original Shares amounted to 1567. The Shares added during the past year have been 38; Donations amounting to £970 have been received, and the Instalments paid upon 7 Shares forfeited in the course of the year amount to £235.

The total Capital in Shares and Donations at this day is £163,462 10*s.* as follows:

Donations.....	2,327	10	0
Payments on Forfeited Shares.....	635	0	0
	£163,462	10	0

Of this sum, £147,782 10*s.* has actually been received. The remainder consists of the following Arrears:

On Second Instalment of £10, due 24th of Jan. 1827 ..				275
Third	do.	do.	5th of Aug. ..	580
					855
Fourth	do.	do.	5th of Feb. 1828 ..	865

Eighth	do.	do.	15th of June ..	4,835
Last	do.	£5	1st of Dec. ..	2,910
					10,560
			Total		£15,680

A considerable portion of the Arrears constituting the sums of £855 and £4,265 is for Shares recently taken, and therefore not yet due; Instalments upon new Shares becoming due only at intervals of three months from the payment of the First Deposit of £25. There are 14 Shares upon which the arrears are not expected to be paid, which must, in that event, be forfeited. The Council are always unwilling to proceed to that extremity, until all efforts to avert it have failed. Twenty-seven Shares have already been forfeited; upon which payments to the amount of £635 had been made. The arrears upon the twenty-seven forfeited Shares, amounting to £1965, have been deducted in the statement of Capital given above.

The Expenditure to the 31st of December last has been as follows:

exclusive of any additions from new Shares.

At the conclusion of this Report will be found a detailed statement of the Receipts and Expenditure of the year 1829, as examined and signed by the Auditors. From that statement it will be found that the various items which belong to the head of Expenses of Management, amount to £5647 16*s.* 7*d.*, and there are unpaid tradesmen's bills belonging to 1829 amount-to £290, making a total charge of £5937 16*s.* 7*d.*: but as that sum includes payments on account of former years to the extent of £957 2*s.* 6*d.*, the actual charge for Management in the year 1829 has been £4980 14*s.* 1*d.* The Receipts in 1829, from the proportion of the Fees of the Students reserved for the support of the establishment, having been £3732 10*s.* 2*d., the Council think that they have reason to congratulate the Proprietors, that in the second year of the institution, the revenue has advanced so far towards an equality with the annual charges of Management.

The Council have not ceased to take the greatest care that the strictest economy should prevail in every branch of the expenditure. They stated in their last Report, that experience did not permit them to expect that the business of the University could be properly conducted at a less annual charge than £5500, including moderate additions to the Museums and Library. Recent investigations have again satisfied them that, for the present year at least, that sum cannot be reduced.

In the last Report, the Proprietors were urgently requested to make exertions in their individual circles to promote subscriptions for additional Shares; and it is to be regretted that among so numerous a body more has not been done in the past year. It is obvious that the utmost exertions of the Council can do little in comparison with what might be effected by the active co-operation of the Proprietors; and it is to be hoped that, in future, every Proprietor will see the necessity for individual activity.

Until the Capital is increased to the extent of £10,000, the Great Library, the Museum of Natural History, and the

* This sum of £3732 10*s.* 2*d.* is made up of £980 18s. 2*d.* received between the 1st of January and the 1st of June, and therefore belonging to the Session 1828–9, and of £2751 12*s.* belonging to the present Session, received between the 1st of September and the 31st of December.

By the 53rd Clause of the Deed of Settlement, the Statement of Receipts and Expenditure to be laid before the Annual General Meeting must be for the year ending 31st December preceding; but as the revenue from Students' Fees, out of which the annual expenses of the establishment have to be defrayed, is collected between September and June, it is the intention of the Council to lay before the Proprietors in future, in addition to the Statement required by the Deed of Settlement, an Account showing the Receipts and Expenditure of each Academical Session.

Hall, cannot be finished. These are much wanted;—the Library for the accommodation of the Students in consulting the books already collected, the present Library being inconveniently small for that purpose;—the Museum to receive objects of Natural History of great value, promised to be given to the University as soon as there is a proper place for their reception;—and the Hall for Examinations, which are conducted very inconveniently in the Lecture Rooms.

One hundred additional Shares would accomplish these objects.

The Council last July proposed a scheme for Supplemental Shares to be taken by existing Proprietors for the above purpose, and 59 such Shares have been taken; but it must be recollected that they are subscribed on the express condition that they are to be replaced by Original Shares as they come in. The instalments upon these Supplemental Shares are not to be called for until 100 have been subscribed; and it is hoped that those Proprietors who are anxious for the accomplishment of objects so desirable, will lose no time in adding their names to the list.

To build the Wings will require a further addition of £40,000, or four hundred Shares.

In the estimate of the resources the Council have not included the portion of land belonging to the University on the west side of their private road. They are very unwilling to advise the alienation of any part of the land for purposes not connected with the University; but it is believed that the portion alluded to could be let on building leases on such terms as would yield a revenue of £500 per annum.

Building.

All the work which was contracted for has been finished; the Accounts of the Contractors are now in the course of adjustment, shortly after which the Balance, estimated not to exceed £12,600, will be paid. The plans for fitting up the Great Library are prepared, but the Council cannot give orders for the work to commence until the supplemental Shares are subscribed The estimate for finishing the Great Library is £2730, and the Book Cases will probably cost about £1000; so that the whole of this expense, making a due allowance for Extras and Furniture, will amount to a sum not exceeding £4000. It is intended that one half of the room shall be appropriated to the Collections of Natural History, until the Great Museum is fitted up.

Library.

The Number of Volumes added to the Library during the last year is 2527, of which 1970 have been purchased, and 557 have been donations. The total number of Volumes belonging to the University is 9027. The Council would gladly have announced a larger addition, but prudential considerations have limited the purchases. The Books which have been bought are such as are most wanted for consultation by the Students in the Course of their Education at the University. It is proper to remind the Proprietors that so numerous a body may very effectually promote the objects of the Institution by a very trifling sacrifice from their private Collections.

Among the Donations which have been received during the last Year, the Council have to mention the Catalogue of Maps, Plans, &c. in the Royal Library at the British Museum, presented to the University by the Trustees, and the Catalogue of the Books in the Royal Library presented by the late Sir Frederick Barnard, the Librarian of that splendid Collection. Every acknowledgement is due to the Trustees of the British Museum, for facilities afforded to the Students of the University.

The establishment of the Ricardo Library of Political Economy was announced at the last Annual Meeting; 450 Volumes have been already collected, and a separate room has been allotted to them.

The Medical Works, consisting at present of 1000 Volumes, have been formed into a distinct Library, as the Law Books were last year. They are placed in a room adjoining the Museum of Anatomy, and are accessible to the Students from 9 in the Morning until 9 at Night; an arrangement which has proved very acceptable to the Medical Students, by whom great use of this Library is made.

The Librarian has prepared Catalogues of different kinds to facilitate reference as much as possible.

Museums.

The Museum of Anatomy has been constantly receiving additions during the last year, chiefly by the exertions of Mr. Hind the Curator, and very full Catalogues have been made. It is open all day, and is much resorted to by the Students. Considerable additions have also been made to the Drawings of Morbid Anatomy, which at present consist of above 800 Delineations, a collection of the highest value for the purposes of teaching.

The collection of objects of Natural History has not been much increased: and until a proper place is prepared for their reception it would not be advisable to add much by purchases. Several Donations have been received in the course of the year, a List of which is annexed to this Report.

Students.

The number of Students enrolled for the present Session amounts to 596, of whom 224 have entered for branches of General Education, 106 for Law only, and 256 for Medical Classes only. There are 108 in the Latin Classes, 85 in the Greek Classes, 83 in the Classes for the English Language, and 94 in the Mathematical Classes.

The Students entered at the date of the last Annual General Meeting amounted to 557; but that number included those who had entered for Single Courses, which terminated at Christmas. The number of Students actually in attendance at the date of the last Report, was 485. The number of Students now in attendance, after making similar deductions, is 577.

This increase of numbers is not the only proof of the advancement of the University. The Students of the present year, taken generally, attend a greater number of Classes than those of last Session; the Fees paid into the Office amounted last year at this time to £6724 12*s.* they amount this year to £9826 9*s.* 2*d.*—an increase of nearly one-half. The average payment of each Student last Session was £11 13*s.* 4*d.* This year it is already £16 8*s.* The proportion of the Fees reserved for the University was last Session £2883; it has already amounted to £3700 for the present Session. The average payment of each Student to the University Fund was £4 13*s.* 6*d.* in the last Session; it amounts to £6 4*s.* 2*d.* in the present; according to which average, 885 Students would cover the estimated annual charges of the University.

The system of instruction in the Classes connected with General Education has been so fully admitted by the most competent judges to be well adapted to the end in view, that there is every reason to expect that there will be a large increase of attendance upon those Classes as the University becomes better known. The increase will perhaps be more gradual than the sanguine friends of the University expect; for a large proportion of the resident population of London, for whose benefit the Institution was principally established, have yet to learn the advantages which are within their reach, both as regards economy of time, and the moderate price at which an improved education for their sons may be had. It is even yet very imperfectly known, that while the University affords a complete course of instruction to those who desire it, the arrangements are such that young men already engaged in professions may improve their education in many important branches of literature and science by attending the early Morning and the Evening Classes.

As many of the Students at the close of the present Session will be prepared to read the more difficult Greek authors, the Professor intends to open a Third Class next Session for Students of this description. This Class will be advantageous not only to those who have been prepared for it at the University, but to others who are desirous of assistance in prosecuting the higher departments of Greek Literature.

The Council wish also to point out particularly to the parents of young men, who are intended to complete their education at Oxford or Cambridge, that the course of Classical and Mathematical instruction which they may pursue under the Professors of this Institution, during the interval which frequently elapses between the termination of their school education and their residence at those Universities, affords an excellent substitute for the uncertain and very expensive plan of private tuition to which it has been usual to resort.

It has been suggested that the establishment of a Day School, in the neighbourhood of the University, where the Pupils may be so instructed in the elementary parts of their classical studies, and in other branches of education, as fully to prepare them for the business of the University, is highly desirable. The Council will take this subject into their early and serious consideration, but they will not incur any expense for the School without the previous sanction of the Proprietors.

Law Department.

The Council continue to derive the greatest satisfaction from the success which has attended the Law Department, and they have directed their attention to its extension and improvement. Obstacles have presented themselves to the adoption of the measures which were last year in contemplation with this view: but it is confidently trusted that these may be removed, and that the means may be afforded before another Session opens, of a more extended Legal Education.

Examinations and Prizes.

In addition to the Examinations, which form a regular part of the system of teaching in all the Classes, Examinations of a more general nature take place in each Class at Christmas and Easter, and a third immediately before the conclusion of the Session. The Examinations are oral, and by written answers to a series of questions: by the latter the Prizes and Certificates of Honours are determined. The Proprietors have been already informed of the method that is followed in awarding these distinctions, by the account which was published of the distribution of the Prizes at the close of the last Session.

The Prizes consisted of Gold and Silver Medals, or of Books, according to the wishes of the different Professors.

The Examinations at the close of the last Session proved, to the satisfaction of all who attended them, that the Professors had zealously discharged their duties, and that the system of teaching which had been adopted was very efficient.

In the "Second Statement by the Council," published immediately before the opening of the University, it was intimated that "besides Certificates of the Professors, the University will grant Certificates of General Proficiency in Literature and Science." The Professors are very desirous that this intention of the Council should be carried into effect, as they are of opinion that it will prove a very beneficial stimulus to the Students in all the Classes, and that the obtaining of such a Certificate will be a substantial advantage to the Medical Students in particular. The Council are now engaged in considering the qualifications and conditions upon which such Certificate shall be granted, and the title by which it shall be designated in the several branches.

Before concluding this branch of the Report, the Council, on the part of themselves and of the Professors, earnestly request the Proprietors to visit the Classes, and to invite their friends to do the same. The progress of the University will be rapid in proportion as it becomes better known; and there is no way so effectual for that purpose as by the frequent visits of strangers, and the reports they carry into their respective circles of acquaintance of what they have witnessed. The Council have given such orders to the door-keepers as afford every facility of admission to the Lecture Rooms, without disturbing the Professor in the business of his Class.

Professorships.

The Chair of History, and that of Logic and the Philosophy of the Human Mind, have been recently filled by the appointment of Benjamin Heath Malkin, LL.D. to the former, and the Rev. John Hoppus to the latter. Dr. Malkin proposes to give next month a short course of Lectures on the "Practical Uses of the Study of History." Mr. Hoppus will not enter upon his duties until next Session.

The Professorships of Moral and Political Philosophy and of Geology and Mineralogy are still vacant.

Hospital and Dispensary.

The Council regret that they have been unable to take any steps during the last year with the view to raise a fund for the erection and maintenance of a Hospital which should be in connection with the University.

The Dispensary has combined two objects of great utility. It has afforded relief to the surrounding poor to a great extent, 2492 patients having been admitted in the eighteen months during which it has been in operation, and it has been eminently useful to the Medical Students. It is hoped that the Proprietors of the University will give their support to this Institution by small annual subscriptions. By so doing they will confer a great benefit upon the surrounding district, and they will relieve the funds of the University from the payment of a sum which at present presses hard upon the revenue. A Subscriber of one guinea annually may always have two patients on the Dispensary Books.

The Council, while they do not conceal that they expected there would have been a larger increase in the Classes of General Education in the present Session, are decidedly of opinion that there is good ground for sanguine anticipations of the future prosperity of the University. An advance has been made in the number of Students attending the General Classes; a great increase has taken place in the Medical Classes; and the receipts from Students' Fees have been largely augmented. Notwithstanding the publicity that has been given by extensive advertisements, it is very remarkable how little more than the mere existence of the University is yet known to the people of London, even to those who reside in its vicinity; and in the country it is still less known. This the Council have had ample opportunity of ascertaining from the nature of the inquiries they have been called upon to answer. When the public are fully aware of the excellence and cheapness of the education and the facility of admission, there can be little doubt that such advantages will not be neglected.
